Army Research Institute for the Behavioral and Social Sciences, 2006 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)318454007 Subject: Soldiers -- Training of -- United States. Excerpt: . . . questionnaire, a scale value of 1 reflected the most negative rating for SimFX, a scale value of 4 a neutral or indifferent rating, and a scale value of 7 the most positive rating for SimFX. In part three of the questionnaire, respondents used a five-point rating scale to indicate their reactions to positive statements about the usability of SimFX. The five scale values were verbally labeled Strongly disagree, Disagree, Neither agree nor disagree, Agree, and Strongly agree, and assigned numeric values of 1 through 5, respectively. Many of the items to be rated in the questionnaire were modified from those used to assess the training effectiveness of other Army simulation-based training tools (Beal and Christ, 2004, 2005). In the last part of the questionnaire the respondents were asked to describe their overall opinions of the training and authoring capabilities of SimFX. They were asked to describe up to three positive and three negative features of SimFX for training and up to two positive and two negative features of SimFX for authoring training scenarios and exercises. Observations of and oral comments by the participants during the workshop were not formally recorded and are not presented in this report. RESULTS Rated Opinions About SimFX Training value of the SimFX tool. The participants indicated that they believed the SimFX would have training value. Across the eleven items in this part of the questionnaire, between 68 and 95 percent of the respondents used one of the three highest rating categories to indicate a positive opinion of...
